Partial Relief After Record Is Equalled

After suffering through a day that saw the mercury zoom to 105 degrees to equal the highest temperature reading in 43 years of local weather record, perspiring Marion residents looked forward to promised thundershowers and cooler weather late today.

Partial relief came this morning for Marion along with other Ohio cities when prevailing temperatures were from one to 16 degrees below yesterday's comparable readings. The mercury here stood at 90 at noon today, 11 degrees under the noon mark yesterday and at 2:30 it was only 93 as compared with Tuesday's 2:30 reading of 104.

Only one other temperature reading in the last 43 years taken on July 3, 1911, equalled the 105 mark hung up yesterday, Dr. E. H. Ralfensperger, government weather observer here reported.

A cooling wind from the north last night provided a preview of lower temperatures. The weather man says local thundershowers this afternoon or tonight will be followed by slightly cooler weather tonight and Thursday. Generally fair tonight and Thursday after the showers is the prediction. Last night's low temperature was 72. A high of 82 and a low of 61 were recorded a year ago.

Three Overcome Here

The number of heat victims in Marion increased by three today.

Henry B. Hane of 750 East Church street was admitted to the City hospital this morning for treatment. He is suffering from heat exhaustion, the attending physician said. His condition is not serious.

Heat Blamed for Kenton Grocer's Death

By The Associated Press

KENTON, O., July 15—The heat claimed its first victim last night at the close of the day when an all-time record of 108 degrees was set in Kenton.

John Schneider, 68, who operated a small grocery store in connection with his home in the residential district was found dead last night at 8 at his home. The body temperature was 109 degrees and because of the high fever and the heat of the room it was impossible to ascertain how long he had been dead, the attending physician said. He said death was caused either by prostration or a sunstroke.

Mr. Schneider had been painting his house and operating the grocery store through the extreme heat of the last week and last night a 6 a customer asked him if he was feeling well. Shortly afterwards he went to his home where he lived with a sister who is blind and deaf and laid down on a cot. Two hours later a friend of the sister called at the home and remarked a Mr. Schneider seemed to be extremely ill. A physician was called and when he arrived found Mr. Schneider dead.

Mr. Schneider lived in Kenton practically all of his life and had been in the grocery business for the last 12 years. Arrangements for the funeral will be made this afternoon.

BUILDINGS ON FARM BURNED

Flames Cause $5,000 Loss on Property of Frank Washburn, Former Sheriff

LARGE BARN DESTROYED

Three Other Buildings Lost, Flames Break Out During Threshing

Damage estimated by the owner at $5,000 was caused this afternoon by a fire on the Frank Washburn farm on the Shoots road about six miles northwest of Marion. Mr. Washburn is a former Marion county sheriff.

The fire destroyed a barn 50 by 90 feet and three outbuildings in addition to a strawstack in which the fire started.

Flames broke out about 1:15 p. m. at the top of the stack while a threshing crew was at work. Before anything could be done the spread to the barn and then to the outbuilding as the sparks were carried by the wind.

Members of the threshing crew kept the fire from spreading to the house 250 yards away by surrounding the barn and preventing flames from igniting the grass.

Destroyed along with the barn were a new corn crib containing 200 bushels of corn, a toolhouse containing lumber and a scaleshed. The flames also destroyed about 30 tons of hay, some of which was in the barn and some outside.

MARION OXYGEN ISSUE ARGUED

Mayor, Fire Chief, Clerk and Service Safety Director Discuss Problem

DEATH PROMPTS PARLEY

Question of Purchasing Inhalator Fluid Cause of Debate in Conference

City officials met in a conference this morning in the office of Mayor Frederick C. Smith in an attempt to clear up an apparent misunderstanding concerning purchases of oxygen for the city fire department inhalator.

At the conference were Mayor Smith, Fire Chief T. J. McFarland, Service Safety Director J. V. Ruth and City Clerk Harry Brookshire.

Prompting the conference was the situation which arose Monday when difficulty was encountered in obtaining oxygen for use in an attempt to save Floyd Schofield, 40, of 47 … avenue, who was drowned in the Scioto river at Green Camp.

At that time Chief McFarland said he had made two requests to city officials for oxygen but that they had gone unheeded.

It was brought out in the conference today that the only mention of purchasing oxygen that had passed between Chief McFarland and Mayor Smith or Mr. Ruth was last January. At that time the conferees agreed Chief McFarland brought the matter up and Mayor Smith suggested that attempts be made to obtain cheaper supply.

Since then Chief McFarland had not bought oxygen, he said, because he was waiting to hear from the mayor as to the suitability of straight oxygen, which is cheaper than oxygen containing a percentage of carbon dioxide, previously used by the department.

On the other hand Mayor Smith said this morning he had assumed that Chief McFarland had bought more oxygen in the meantime. The mayor meanwhile has been investigating the possibility of obtaining a supply at lower cost.

There was a matter of who had authority to buy the supply, according to statements made in the conference and assented to by all conferees.

Mr. Ruth said that he has instructed the heads of each department to make all routine purchases for their departments with the single stipulation that they remain within their appropriation. All bills and payrolls are then checked each month by Mr. Ruth, he said.

The service-safety director said he has received no requests for oxygen from Chief McFarland and that the chief had the authority to make the oxygen purchases.

Chief McFarland also said that he has been given a free hand by Mr. Ruth and that the reason he had not purchased oxygen was that he had not heard which type would be more suitable.

Discourage Use of Device

The chief also declared that he felt the fire department should not be called on for inhalator work, but that artificial respiration should be resorted to and the patient rushed to a hospital. Inhalators must be used under a doctor's instructions, Chief Mc-

BLAZE SPREADS OVER 2 FLOORS

Fireman Stafford Overcome by Smoke and Heat but Recovers Quickly

ORIGIN IS UNDETERMINED

Started Near Club Rooms, Stock and Equipment of Monarch Co. Damaged

Fire of undetermined origin swept two floors of the Masonic Temple at Main and Church streets in the early morning hours today, causing damage roughly estimated at approximately $18,000.

One fireman, William Stafford, was overcome by the heavy smoke and intense heat.

Chief T. J. McFarland and 17 firemen fought the blaze more than two hours before it was extinguished. The first of two alarms was sounded at 3:17 a. m.

Estimates made of the fire loss today placed the damage to the rooms of the Masonic lodge at approximately $11,000 and additional damage of nearly $7,000 to the stock and equipment of the Monarch Printing Company, located on the ground floor of the four-story building.

Discovered by Phone Man

The fire was seen first by … Brady, a night … man at the Ohio Associated Telephone Co., who telephoned Central fire station. The first alarm brought the forces of Central and West Hill stations, totalling eight men. A second alarm summoned the force from the Mark Street station and all men who were off duty, bringing to 17 the total number of firemen who fought the blaze under the direction of Chief McFarland. Three firemen are on their vacations.

When he was overcome by smoke and heat Fireman Stafford was forced to retire from the building. He quickly recovered.

The fire started in a small room on the second floor used to store dining room tables and card tables. Chief McFarland said it quickly spread through four club rooms on that floor and the flames licked through the floor above and into the office of C. P. Waddell, secretary of the lodge.

Seven Rooms Afire

The fire made charred ruins of the four rooms on the second floor and the flames ate into three rooms on the third floor while smoke and water caused damage to three rooms on the fourth floor.

The flames that burst from the back windows and high into the air were seen by residents within a half mile radius of the building. The fire attracted a crowd of only about 75 people.

Chief McFarland said the origin of the fire was not determined. There was no lodge meeting last night and several members who had been playing cards in the club rooms left the building about ?:30.

Three lines of two and one half inch hose were played on the blaze by the fire fighters and all available tarpaulin was spread in the rooms of the Monarch company and other business places in the building to protect their property from the water.

Virtually all the damage to the Masonic quarters was confined to the rear rooms. The newly decorated dining room was not touched by the flames and lodge records and mementos were saved.

Business Firms' Damage

K. M. Bowers, president and treasurer of the Monarch company, said he would roughly estimate damage to his stock and merchandise at nearly $7,000. There is water damage to the presses and other mechanical equipment, he said, and smoke damage will destroy the value of virtually all paper stock.

There is some water and smoke damage to the office and supplies of the Secret photo studio, the amount of which has not yet been estimated. McClain's furniture store suffered no water damage and only slight smoke damage and while the blaze threatened for awhile the Drake Battery & Tire Service quarters there was no actual damage, Kelsey Drake, proprietor, said.

Those directly interested in the fire and spectators today commended Chief McFarland and his men for their speed in checking the spread of the blaze. Mr. Waddell, Mr. Bowers and Mr. Drake also voiced their appreciation of the work done by the fire fighting force.

The fire at the Masonic Temple today serves to recall another at the building seven years ago which resulted in a loss of approximately $18,000.

Council To Bring Lewis Faction to Trial Instead, Compromise Sought

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 15.—American Federation of Labor peacemakers were reported likely to have won a delay in their battle to prevent the ousting of John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers and 11 other industrial unions.

Usually well-informed labor men heard that the federation's executive council had decided … [illegible] originally scheduled … a proposal to suspend … [illegible]

Instead the council was reported to have agreed to bring the 12 unions to formal trials on charges of seeking to organize workers by methods which violate A. F. of L. laws.

These trials, it was said, would start within two weeks.

The United Mine Workers accused the American Federation of Labor's executive council of joining hands with the great steel companies to prevent the organization of steel workers.

The peace makers battling for a delay in the suspension that a majority of the council favors were elated. They intend to use the two weeks for attempts to arrange a compromise between the federation's craft union faction and the Lewis group which thinks that all the workers in each big industry should be organized into one giant union regardless of craft lines.

The first of these conferences broke up at midnight last night, with "no progress" reported.

William Green, federation president, refused to confirm or deny the reports of the council's action when asked about them today. At the close of yesterday's meeting he said no decisions had been made.

George M. Harrison, president of the railway clerks and leader of the small group of council members opposed to casting out one-third of the federation's membership, was said to have won the delay in yesterday afternoon's session.

Harrison contended that suspension without formal charges was illegal.

ITALY LAUDS IL DUCE AS SANCTIONS END

Mussolini Orders Flags Out To Greet Termination of Economic Isolation

By The Associated Press

ROME, July 15 — Flag-draped Italy emerged today from 240 days of war sanctions with praise for Mussolini's "secure guidance."

The Fascist party directorate celebrated suspension of the penalties for aggression against Ethiopia by sending Il Duce a congratulatory message which said:

"After the victorious epilogue of African achievement due to your indomitable will, the end of the League of Nations adventure is consecrated with your complete victory of the right of Fascist Italy."

The goal has been reached in a far from slackening pace which impels the people to march on under your secure guidance.

Mussolini ordered a nationwide display of flags to greet removal of the economic and financial blockade imposed last October and ended recently by the league assembly at Geneva.

Economic and political circles, however, turned to a more sober strain declaring Italy will operate on a virtually sanctioned basis for some time to come.

Four reasons were cited by commercial sources for this belief:

1. Mussolini to carry out his determination to make the country as self sufficient as possible must reduce unnecessary and luxury imports almost to zero.

2. Italy naturally will continue to trade—as much as prices warrant—with nations which did not impose sanctions.

3. Vast stocks of raw materials imported before and during sanctions at high prices must be used up before regular trade may be reestablished.

4. Italy's war manufactures will continue at a speedy pace to replace the fighting equipment and materials sent to the east African fronts.

TWO BORAH MEN RALLY TO SUPPORT OF LANDON

Idahoan's Aids Call at Topeka and Claim He Has Good Chance To Win West

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA, Kas., July 15—Two pre-convention Borah men discussed Republican prospects in the northwest with Gov. Alf M. Landon today, after telling newsmen the presidential candidate's chances are increasing all the time.

John Thomas of Idaho, friend of Sen. William E. Borah and his former colleague in the senate, visited Landon with E. G. Pearce of Utah. Prior to the Cleveland convention both had supported Borah for the Republican nomination.

"We came to go over the situation in the northwestern intermountain states," Thomas said. "Republican chances are improving all the time. Landon has an appeal to our people and a fine chance to carry the northwest."

Expectant Mothers

Away back yonder in the so-called good old days when it was often the custom to bleed those who applied to a doctor for treatment and when all manner of obnoxious medicines in their crudest state were administered, the prenatal period and the ordeal of childbirth were occasions given little or no scientific thought.

Today the wise expectant mother takes her problem to a physician who after a study of the case prescribes the proper diet and exercise with the result that childbirth mortality has decreased nearly one hundred per cent.

Today the modern pharmacy stocked with pharmaceuticals, serums, vaccines and sick room supplies supplants the old time apothecary shop to the same degree that medical treatment of today supersedes that of the Victorian and earlier ages.

Your Health

BY DR. R. S. COPELAND

Strain on Heart

It is not long ago that I wrote about heart disease in children and adults. I can not refrain from saying something more about this serious affection. It is too important a subject to slight. Everybody should know that many persons suffer from heart disease only because they ignore the many warnings of danger and the easy means of escaping it.

The constant peril from weakness of the heart should be familiar to everyone. It is only by universal education that the necessary precautions will be taken. Then the sufferer will not unknowingly subject his heart to harmful and damaging strain.

How much do you know about the structure and action of the heart?

This vital organ weighs only eight to 10 ounces. It is capable of doing an excessive amount of work even though it never rests. It beats on the average 72 times each minute, more than 4000 times each hour.

The heart has a never ending job to do. If it falters or weakens for any length of time serious ill effects are experienced. An unusually rapid beat means an added load for the heart to carry. This load may become too much and when this happens there is greater danger.

Even if the heart continues to beat it may not be able to function properly. In consequence there is difficulty in breathing as well as blueness, swelling of the feet and ankles and other symptoms.

How can we guard against the symptoms associated with heart trouble?

We can best do this by making sure the heart is healthy and strong. We can learn to avoid unnecessary risks and strains. Even if the heart is weak, health and usefulness can be maintained if certain restrictions are observed.

Fortunately this vital organ has marvelous recuperative powers. It quickly responds to rest and treatment. That is the reason why one with a weak heart can live a long and happy life provided the necessary precautions are taken. In fact so-called cardiacs, sufferers from heart disease, lead healthy and long lives by avoiding unnecessary strain, stress and excitement.

If you have not recently consulted with your doctor do so now. Determine the exact condition of your heart. This visit is especially recommended if you have noticed numbness of the feet, pain around the heart, shortness of breath or fluttering of the heart. These are warning signs that you should not ignore.

Answers to Health Queries

Miss M. J. R. Q.—I am 15 years of age and have for some time been troubled with grinding my teeth while sleeping. What is the cause and cure for this?

A.—This may be due to nervousness or intestinal worms. For full particulars restate your question and send a stamped, self addressed envelope.

Mrs. M. Q.—What causes boils and what treatment will get at the source of the trouble?

A.—Boils usually indicate some underlying disturbance or infection. The general health is a factor. A complete examination will determine the cause of the trouble. For further particulars send a self addressed stamped envelope and repeat your question.

Dr. Copeland is glad to answer inquiries from readers who send addressed stamped envelopes with their questions. Address all letters to Dr. Copeland in care of this newspaper at its main office in this city.

Police Predict Showdown Shortly in Girl's Story of Murderous Assault

By The Associated Press

Late last night detectives again questioned the girl who previously had been subjected to 20 hours of interrogation. She again denied her story was a hoax.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels every day. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

Laxatives are only makeshifts. A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Stubbornly refuse anything else.

For over 40 years it has been—and still is—successfully used to relieve quickly the itching and burning of eczema. It contains soothing ingredients that aid healing.

Use Resinol Ointment today and enjoy comfort tomorrow. Get a jar, also a cake of Resinol Soap at any drug store. For free sample write to Resinol, Dept. 1, Baltimore, Md.

Charles Chaplin was listed as the wealthiest actor and Mary Pickford as the wealthiest actress but a change in the law conceal[s] the greatest portion of their wealth.

U. S. JURY INDICTS 21 IN STOCK FRAUD CASE

Five Corporations Facing Charges of Multi-Million Dollar Swindle

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 15—Indictment of 21 individuals and five corporations by a federal grand jury at Gainesville, Ga., on charges they participated in a multi-million dollar stock swindling scheme was announced yesterday by John J. Burns, counsel for the Securities commission.

He said the defendants operated offices in a dozen cities, centering their activities at Chicago.

All were indicted on seven counts charging violations of a section of the securities act which prohibits the sale of stock through misrepresentation, he said, and also on seven counts alleging use of the mails to defraud.

Burns said the indictments were the result of a year-long investigation by postal inspectors, the department of justice and the securities commission.

Listed in the indictment were these corporations:

Ronald Quinn & Co., McCormick & Co., Robert Barr & Co., E. Gould & Co. and Frank Munch & Co., all Illinois corporations with offices in Chicago and other cities.

The case was presented to the grand jury at Gainesville, Burns said, because the group had been active in Georgia.

Three of the indicted men, Frank Berger, Henry Bernstein and Joseph Mendelson, all of Chicago, at once were seized by postal inspectors and held for hearing July 28 under bonds of from $2,500 to $5,000.

An assistant United States district attorney said the charges arose from sale of stock in the Stutz Motor Co. and the National Service Corp.

PRESCRIBES DRINKING WATER FOR AILMENTS

Specialist Tells of Results Obtained from Simple Method of Treatment

By International News Service

VIENNA For quite a number of diseases there is no better medicine than a glass of water said Professor Karl Glaessner famous Vienna specialist for internal diseases in a lecture here before the Society of Physicians

Professor Glaessner claims to have achieved striking results with distilled water in cases of kidney and liver troubles and also in certain cases of high blood pressure

Many physicians considered it to be fatal to drink distilled water explained the Professor but this is not the case On the contrary I found that distilled water is a very efficient and reliable method of eliminating salts and nitrogen compounds from the blood and tissues. By giving only distilled water to drink, I cured a great number of patients suffering from kidney and liver affections, such as uraemia stone colic and jaundice. After a short treatment with distilled water the skin and urine lost their abnormal color, a general improvement followed, and there were no harmful complications."

"The treatment is very simple. The patient must drink one to two liters of distilled water a day, according to the nature of his complaint, either cool or hot, one or two glasses before each meal. It is advisable that the patient should afterwards lie on his right side for about 20 minutes, by which time the water has left the stomach."

He was [illegible] Dicky commented [illegible] were [illegible] from [illegible] There are no [illegible] women with a few [illegible] friendship [illegible] a fair deal [illegible] mixed up

[illegible] Hamp[illegible] found [illegible] he'd go [illegible] and blame you for mixing up in such a crazy scheme And look here you can't tell me that Mrs Cosgrove was willing that [illegible] plan [illegible] her [illegible] should be put into effect

On the contrary I told him quietly she was [illegible] eager for the plan to go through as was her brother She said that if Lillian had married him as she had hoped he would because Robert's approval was [illegible] Lillian the estate would have been equally divided between Lillian and herself just as it is now

Woman in Billion

Roner had told her that long before She told me that providing for the future of Lillian and Marion gave her brother infinite happiness during the last days of his life and that she was most thankful to me for enabling him to carry out the plan he had been considering for so long

Well she's a woman in a billion Dicky commented and I quickly agreed with him

She's simply wonderful I said and then my husband put another query

How much does this thing total? he asked and quakingly I told him the sum that Robert Savarin had entrusted to my care

Sheer stark astonishment held him for the fraction of a second then he struck his hand violently against his knee

I'll be eternally gin swizzled he ejaculated and you have the handling of that much money Woman don't you realize the danger you run If anybody knew that you have the right to draw against that money with no questions asked you'd be the victim of a picturesque snatch

But nobody does know I said reasonably And I don't intend that anybody ever shall know I never have gone near the bank where it is nor have I drawn a penny of it so far

Dicky pounced upon my hesitation

So far he echoed You certainly haven't any idea of drawing against it now have you? Or is Lil in some trouble that I don't guess?

No I said lowly she isn't in any trouble but I am planning to draw against some of that money

MURDER TONIGHT

BY LAURENCE W. MEYNELL

(Copyright [illegible])

SYNOPSIS: [illegible] Inspector Hylton has eliminated every person he suspects of the murder of old Arthur Burdett until only Dale Shipley, Burdett's half nephew, is left. And he has plenty of evidence to justify arresting Dale, part of it acquired by an accidental meeting with a tramp. Hylton has hurried as fast as possible to Shipley's cottage after talking with the last of his suspicious list.

* * *

CHAPTER TWENTY EIGHT

Flight

THE door of Shipley's cottage was opened a foot or so by Mrs Somers who, when she saw who the visitor was, showed no inclination to increase the aperture.

"Mr Shipley in?" he asked

"No—he isn't in"

"Do you know where he's gone?"

"I can't say that I do"

"What time did he go out?"

"Well—I—" The faithful Mrs Somers seemed nonplussed [illegible] a

Miss Featherstone at the door

wild aspiration such as had saved him more than once before came to Hilton

"I suppose he slept last night here didn't he?" he asked

Mrs Somers turned brick red

"I never said he didn't" she stammered

"No you don't" Hylton frustrated her determined effort to slam the door in his face by a lightning-like forward movement of his foot. The inspector forced his way into the hall

"Now look here Mrs Somers" he said "you're acting like a fool You know who I am and what business I'm here on If you won't talk to me here I shall have you taken to Morechester Police station and we'll keep you there until you do talk, so make up your mind"

The embarrassed and indignant red of Mrs Somers' countenance had suddenly given way to dead white.

"What is it you want to know?" she asked woodenly.

"I want to know everything you know about Shipley's whereabouts."

"I've no idea where he is"

"But you know something" Hylton said brutally, "and you'll tell it to me—now"

"Mr Shipley went off yesterday evening."

"We [illegible] His [illegible] was in the [illegible] after [illegible] Where to?"

"I tell you I don't know"

"[illegible] what [illegible] to know Mrs Somers, and quickly please"

"About six o'clock yesterday evening it was Mr Shipley said he was going up to London for a [illegible] and didn't know when he'd be back That's all I know"

Hylton almost gasped with delight as he stared at the reluctant informer Young Shipley had bolted always the most foolish and desperate thing a criminal can do Hylton's brain was working like a fury

* * *

"Inspector Hylton"

He wheeled round astonished

Nancy Featherstone in her best tweed coat and skirt was standing at the open front door

"Hallo Miss Featherstone"

"Good morning"

Nancy looked the picture of calm collectedness but appearances are apt to be deceptive sometimes

"I was looking for you Inspector Hylton"

"For me"

"Yes I wanted a word with you please"

"Right—O There's a telephone call I want to make first but it—"

"I think perhaps you'd better hear what I've got to say first—"

"All right Miss Featherstone If we could have a minute or two together"

Hylton stepped out onto the gravel drive and Nancy silently led him a dozen paces or so from the door then she turned and faced him

"I couldn't help hearing a certain amount of what you were saying to Mrs Somers" she said "Apparently you are looking for Mr Shipley You needn't look far inspector he's at my house"

"At your house?"

"Yes As a matter of fact he—he spent last night there" Nancy said calmly

Hylton actually blushed He certainly had no desire to pry into the affairs of Fuderton except in so far as they concerned his business

"Well I should certainly like a word with Mr Shipley" he said

"You can come down and see him now can't you?"

"Yes I suppose I can He's still there then?"

"Oh yes rather Won't you walk down with me now inspector?"

"Yes I rather think I will"

* * *

Conversation flagged on that half-mile walk Hilton was intensely relieved when they turned into a drive gateway and made their way to a solidly built square house standing well back amid evergreens and trees

Nancy produced a key from her bag and opened the front door

"My maid's out for the day" she said "so will you let me get you a glass of sherry or something?"

"It's very kind of you Miss Featherstone but I won't bother you thanks All I want to do is to have a word with Mr Shipley"

They were in the hall now at the foot of the stairs and Nancy hesitated She stood there eyeing the inspector in a curiously speculative way

"Of course" she said coming to life with a sudden snap "But it's a little awkward you see I'm afraid he isn't quite sober at the moment"

"Er—oh—I—um"

"But perhaps he's well enough now for you to see him and ask some questions—you want to do that don't you?"

"Yes I do"

Nancy nodded brightly "Come along then" she said "and we'll see how he is"

Hylton followed her upstairs turning over in his mind the old, old truth that queer though nature may be in parts there's nothing as queer as folk

Nancy led him along a corridor off the main landing and halted opposite a door half way down it She stood to one side

"If you wouldn't mind going in there" she said "and seeing what you can do with him I'll be down stairs whenever you want me"

Hylton smiled at her "Right O Miss Featherstone thank you very much"

He found himself in a small compartment with a faintly musty smell about it It was in semi-darkness being lighted only by a narrow slit of a window very high up Over in the far corner was something that might be a bed but which turned out to be an old fashioned ottoman with some apparently discarded clothes on it Except for this the room was empty and Hylton slightly surprised went back to the door to seek Miss Featherstone's advice

A sudden stab of recognition went through him—although he must give no indication of it he all at once felt convinced that Miss Featherstone knew perfectly well that the room was empty when she admitted him He wrestled with the door

The Inspector finds himself in a tight place tomorrow

Practical Christian

Sadly [illegible] respectfully many [illegible] parts of the world reviewed [illegible] the [illegible] of the death of Dr. S. Parkes Cadman [illegible] per cent reason [illegible] that [illegible] good had been taken out of their lives.

Dr. Cadman was a minister, a lecturer and a natural leader. For many years he exerted great influence on the lives of numerous men and women able to crowd themselves within range of his voice. After the advent of radio he used it to broaden his sphere of friendly and human religious counsel.

Other men who have had access to the same physical means have failed to make their influence felt in a comparable way. Dr. Cadman obviously possessed something they lacked. It would be difficult to choose one reason for his power, but possibly many reasons might be grouped under one aspect of his character as a religious leader.

He was a practical Christian, a man whose words carried the ring of conviction and whose thoughts nearly always were taken to heart because his listeners found them understandable and therefore believable. He was a famous preacher because he was a convincing counsellor. His oratory and his formal religion were second and third in order of importance.

Apparently Satisfactory.

Less than three years after this country's diplomatic recognition of Russia the two nations are entering upon the second year of a reciprocal tariff agreement. As Cordell Hull, secretary of state, said in announcing continuation of the agreement which expired at the end of the fiscal year June 30, Russia has more than kept its promise to purchase at least $30,000,000 worth of American goods during the year. Final figures are expected to exceed the $37,000,000 mark.

Renewal of the agreement under such happy circumstances is all the more encouraging when it is remembered that so many persons viewed with alarm the proposal to recognize the Soviet republic. The flurry of notes which passed between President Roosevelt and Commissar Litvinov before agreements were signed revealed the jitters from which many Americans were suffering. Finally every comma and period was put in its right place.

Now that Russia has demonstrated its ability to keep a promise, American business will look forward to the comparatively small but welcome flow of orders. At present the chief Soviet export receiving preferential treatment is manganese, produced in insufficient quantities in this country. If our principal imports under the agreement continue to be products not strongly competitive with American goods, "apparently satisfactory" might be written across the renewed trade agreement.

On the Other Hand.

Since the United States patent office was opened in 1836 it has handled 2,000,000 applications for patents. Even before Sen. John Ruggles of Maine obtained patent No. 1 on a cogwheel for locomotives, almost 10,000 patents had been issued in this country through various court and federal authorities.

Behind these figures lies much of the story of American progress. Protected by laws designed to guarantee them just rewards for their ingenuity, inventors in this country have been particularly prolific. From the simple idea of paper matches to the complex contributions of Thomas Edison, there has flowed a stream of inventions invaluable [illegible] American life.

On the other hand Sir Oliver Lodge, British scientist, looks back with regret upon a long [illegible] would materially [illegible] scientific knowledge [illegible] stance that the [illegible] the wizardry of the new [illegible] have been conscripted to aid in [illegible] pitiful endeavor [illegible] war. Rather than increasing of present knowledge [illegible] science's job, he believes.

Somewhere between the [illegible] achievement suggested by patent office [illegible] and the pessimism of Sir Oliver [illegible] the truth. Abundantly this giant [illegible] has spawned new ideas. Once started [illegible] the turn was irresistible. In [illegible] development of America [illegible] service.

Just as the talents of the new [illegible] of men has been applied to the [illegible] of war. Because [illegible] has been applied war has become more horrible [illegible] unendurable. In fact [illegible] science can [illegible] war [illegible] another strong argument for preserving peace.

Undoubtedly the rich ore of discovery [illegible]

New Factor in Politics

[illegible]

[illegible] Farley [illegible]

It [illegible] the [illegible] conditions [illegible] change [illegible] ment. The industrial [illegible] is a development [illegible] which promises much for the future [illegible] what it thinks about national [illegible] wishful thinkers who used to [illegible] the privilege of telling the public what they thought it was thinking eventually are going to have to find a new [illegible].

Shooting The Weatherman.

Dr. Clyde [illegible] president of Lebanon Valley college, is not like Sinclair Lewis. He has criticized the recent awarding of an honorary degree to Mr. Lewis on the grounds the novelist is a bearer of bad news.

Tut on Dr. Lynch. A case might be made against awarding honorary degrees as a general practice, but to protest because Mr. Lewis doesn't always see the sun shining is like wanting to shoot the weatherman because he looks to the heavens and can see nothing but continued drouth. Or like knifing the doctor who wants to operate to save our life. Or like hanging Republicans because they insist this is not the best of all possible worlds despite some superficial evidences of prosperity.

Wise is the man who realizes that the weatherman, the surgeon and the Republican each has his part to play in this complexity called civilization, wherein nothing ever is quite perfect.

A Beautiful Picture

If this were not the year of a presidential election and a drouth it might go down in history as the year of the big hats. Since nearly every woman who intends to own one probably has her copy by this time no possible harm can be done by pointing out that big hats have numerous shortcomings. Specifically they are no good for

Baseball games, crowded elevators and [illegible] moving picture theaters, automobiles in which [illegible] the [illegible] is an active baby [illegible] either fall off or hit one [illegible] in the throat; walking when there's a breeze because they either blow off or [illegible] with the wearer's free hand; and in the family coat room where they take too much room.

Big hats do make a beautiful picture, however, and that is their purpose. Snapshot takers specializing in personal pictures should be able to look back on the summer of 1936 as a delightful season.

Knox Well Trained for Public Service

Effect Use of His Ability Would Have on Vice Presidency Is One of Interesting Phases of Campaign

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

(Copyright 1936 by The Marion Star)

[illegible]

[illegible] man who has [illegible] many years. As [illegible] both in New Hampshire [illegible] Mr. Knox has [illegible] natural [illegible]

[illegible] if the [illegible] to do in the [illegible] But the [illegible] Garner [illegible] likely to be in the 1936 campaign.

The [illegible] Knox [illegible] at the cabinet [illegible] make himself as useful [illegible] the President [illegible] would in all probability [illegible] of the administrative [illegible] which Colonel Knox has [illegible] in his business experience [illegible]

* * *

The [illegible] is known throughout the newspaper world for instance as the man who [illegible] does it in person. [illegible] so often and kept expressed [illegible] so well that he has been at times a target of attack by victims of his economy program.

Certainly when it comes to cutting government expenses the next President of the United States will need all the help he can get and all the ideas of how to approach the problem that can be mustered. The vice president [illegible] little change, even though it has become the custom for Presidents to invite them into the cabinet room for the regular meetings.

As presiding officer of the United States senate the vice president casts his ballot when there is a tie vote on a pending bill and the rest of the time he may or may not give [illegible] duties of interpreting the rule. Entirely apart from this, Vice President Garner on the other hand has been a sort of liaison officer between the White House and Capitol Hill and some of the best bits of persuading on the matter of getting votes for administration measures has been done by Mr. Garner on behalf of Mr. Roosevelt.

So in selecting a vice president who is capable of [illegible] with the President there are possibilities for good government. It may well happen that Colonel Knox will if elected change the entire character of the vice presidency so that it will cease to be thought of in cynical [illegible] political folk or by the public generally. The Throttlebottom version of the vice presidency recently given in a musical satire probably did more to impair the prestige of the vice presidential position than anything else, but on the other hand the travesty was only a reflection of the attitude of passive acquiescence which vice presidents either for modesty or other reasons had themselves adopted.

* * *

My reason for thinking that Colonel Knox if elected will bring to the vice presidency an interesting change is that he has the faculty of original approach. This is illustrated by a story some of his former comrades in the war tell about him when he was in command of an ammunition train. Not content to remain behind the lines and supervise the shipment of ammunition to the battlefront he persuaded the regular line officers that it was better for him to command from the front lines where he could judge the requirements of the artillery regiments he was supplying. He made his headquarters at the front and was thereafter given larger responsibility by reason of his aggressiveness than any other commander of ammunition trains in his area.

The colonel is a vigorous campaigner, a fluent speaker and is likely to carry the brunt of much of the attack in the present [illegible] activities will be well worth watching in this campaign, for to all intents and purposes it is really a Landon-Knox [illegible], a two-man fight, that will be waged this time. The two leaders are in frequent conference and thoroughly understand each other's plans for the campaign. Out of this harmony of operation in the pre-election battle may come valuable cooperation in the event that Governor Landon and Colonel Knox are next January inaugurated as President and vice president respectively.

Men and Affairs Under The Washington Spotlight

BY PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, July 15.—The first small step toward Agriculture Secretary Wallace's prophesied new nation, The Cooperative Commonwealth [illegible] is being taken by a generally [illegible] special Democratic agency, the rural electrification administration.

While Mr. Wallace is writing fluently about the coming cooperative state and Preston Rees [illegible] special mission is in Europe studying innovations along that line, the REA is doing something about it in a practical way.

Without much trumpeting it has been getting farmers together into power co-ops, lending them money to build their own transmission lines, encouraging the regular marketing co-ops to get into the power business and in general establishing what may prove to be a small nucleus for Mr. Wallace's future state.

Widespread Project

REA activities [illegible] public attention [illegible] scattered communities [illegible] but if you will scan them at random you will find such things as these:

A $[illegible] loan to the Grand Valley Water Users Association in Colorado to build 100 miles of electric lines. $70,000 loan to Crisp County (Georgia) farmers permitting them to organize a power line cooperative. $35,000 to the Boone Valley Electric Cooperative in Iowa. 300,000 to the Consumers Cooperative in Prince Frederick, Maryland as initial advance. $50,000 to put the [illegible] Midland Wholesale Cooperative of Minnesota into the power business through the Federated Electric Cooperatives of Minneapolis, amalgamation of three cooperatives around Piqua, Ohio into the Pioneer Rural Electric Cooperative, Inc., under an REA loan of $30,000 for wiring installation, etc.

Put them all together and you have widespread federal financing for co-ops in the construction [illegible] the first time.

Here Are Figures

Loans to co-ops [illegible] built [illegible] miles of power lines.

Loans to power [illegible] South Carolina [illegible]

Loans to private companies [illegible] 346,450.

Private Companies React

These figures on the wall have been read aright by the private power companies. They are enlarging their rural business as fast as they can, but as the figures indicate they are doing most of it with their own money.

They cannot do much in the face of such a competition as for instance can be offered by the Porter Electric Co., a co-op in Rock county, Wis. It is controlled by consumer stockholders, none of whom owns more than three shares. None of its officers receives a salary except the secretary-treasurer who gets $30 a year.

The original 15 miles of line was built by the farmer stockholders themselves. They buy current at the Stoughton hydro plant for 6½ cents per kilowatt hour and sell it to themselves at five cents for the first 50 kilowatt hours per month and three cents per additional kilowatt hour plus $1.50 line charge.

And this business nets them a regular eight per cent dividend on their $10 par stock.

Free from Commissions

Sweetest break the power co-ops have received aside from the windfall of unasked federal funds is the REA legal opinion that they are not generally subject to the jurisdiction of the state power commissions as the private companies are.

Court decisions in California, Illinois, Missouri, Nebraska, Ohio, Pennsylvania and Wisconsin indicate that co-operatives serving only their own members and not the general public are not subject to the general jurisdiction of their respective commissions.

In Indiana and Virginia co-operatives are expressly subject to jurisdiction of the respective commissions by law. In some other states varying restraining influences are exercised, but generally they are free while the private companies are haltered.

Joker?

A few anxious representatives are trying to find out how Mr. Roosevelt is taking their hidden little joker in the deficiency bill. In making an appropriation for a committee already named by the President to investigate reorganization of the government, congress directed that the committee report to congress as well as to the President. A second provision required all government agencies to furnish the same aid to all congressional committees as to the President's committee.

Mr. Roosevelt has not said anything about it and the congressmen are afraid to ask him.

New York Notes

O. O. McIntyre's Diary of Fact, Fancy and Folks

NEW YORK, July 15—The New York Public Library went very Left Bankish at the beginning of summer with its Open Air Reading Room and most New Yorkers regarded it with a smug little smile. How could a hurrying city such as this pause to peruse books during working hours?

But the offshoot has been a singular success. It is smack back of the big library in Bryant Park with pert Vassar-like ladies in charge. They have umbrellaed desks in front of the portable rows of books. There is no charge nor deposit. And free browsing a la The Seine Stalls.

One selects the books, signs and agrees to return it before the shutters are hung up for the day. So far there have not been more than a dozen thefts. And one man confessed he sold his volume for a dime for a needed bite but was so overcome he bought it back next day.

He has been a regular customer. After the reader has selected his book—there are also many periodicals—he wanders to a bench to enjoy himself. Most of the volumes called for are those by authors supposed to inspire thought—Thomas Paine and such.

* * *

New York is the most difficult city in the world in which to develop and sustain conversation. To talk in the subway, on the elevated or street car is impossible almost. That is why the city is the haven of [illegible] talkers who dangle bitten off sentences. "Yeah" and other short exclamations are products of this limitation. If one enters a home the host or hostess suggests turning on Major Bowes or some other rajah of the air. Night clubs are of course too strident for palaver and the most popular eating mode—the cafeteria—is too clatter. Anyone who has tried to converse along Manhattan's streets knows how he must shriek to lift his voice above the din. Nearly everybody at the luncheon hour is mate rushing service to get somewhere else. And so on ad infinitum. A poem for Arthur Guiterman: The Voiceless City.

* * *

Jay Jerome Williams on his estate near Washington, D. C. has his butler pass a snuff box among his dinner guests when the meal is finished. The reaction is a scream. Some make a polite negative. Others suspect it is some old district custom, take a tiny pinch, look about furtively and slip it [illegible] on the floor. It's a gag.

Somebody sends cards from Wilmington, Delaware. Yesterday we [illegible] To [illegible] on the [illegible] And the rest of the day I [illegible] had an urge to read a sign somewhere upon which [illegible] wheels.

Nothing quite so hilarious as a [illegible] announcer when he boots the ball at the kick-off and follows [illegible] with an uncontrolled [illegible] of blunders—a Roman holiday [illegible] and complete [illegible] down. There is always a psychological [illegible] in continuing after the first run [illegible] Experienced announcers usually flash for an assistant. But one stand-patter tods with a high-[illegible] Oxonian accent had his spill at the opening line and rode on a hot [illegible] to the finish. He said [illegible] liquor for illegal liquor and, going back to correct it, said [illegible] Deciding to let it go he came a cropper with "gates of Garanser," meaning, of course, Gates of Paradise. And in a [illegible] of what I imagine was to be a quotation [illegible] became [illegible] He went no further and somehow [illegible] he had tossed the microphone out the window with an unOxonian [illegible] he had put on the crack [illegible] show of the day.

CANTON HOLDS LEAD IN MID-ATLANTIC

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., July 15.—Canton's Terriers continued their mad pace in the Mid Atlantic league last night, playing heads-up ball to hold the second half leadership.

They defeated a fighting Dayton team 6 to 2 while Bert Hash, former University of Richmond star, struck out eight Ducks. Manager Patterson rammed out three hits and his catcher, Brookie, hit a home run off Hockett of Dayton.

Both Huntington and Charleston kept pace with victories over Johnstown, 7 to 6, and Akron, [illegible] to 1. Zanesville, champion of the first half, scored enough runs in the first inning before a man was out to beat Portsmouth. The final score was 7 to 3.

Wild Bill Cummings, the race driver, has a hobby. His recreation is riding a motorcycle—one of the fastest in the country, with a speed of 110 miles an hour.

The [illegible] tightened their grip on third place, finding the sinking St. Louis Browns little trouble and emerging on the long end of a 13-3 count.

The Phillies outlasted the slipping Cincinnati Reds 9 to 8, Woody Jensen's homer and Mace Brown's four-hit [illegible] enabled the Pirates to come from behind and [illegible] the Bees 2-1.

334 Athletes Sail Today For Berlin Olympic Games

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, July 15.—[illegible] to the whistle by pressing financial obligations, 334 of the U. S. Olympic team's 382 members boarded the liner Manhattan today to sail at noon for the Berlin games.

It took a good deal of private and public cajoling to do it, but the team sails with its own expenses clear. An obligation of about $30,000 for running expenses remained, but there was even [illegible] hope that this might be wiped away before the games are over.

The team will spend nine days on the water. If the weather is clear, it is scheduled to reach Berlin July 24. This will give six days of practice before the games start Aug. 1.

Only three members of the women's swimming team were still trying to get the money necessary to sail. These were Iris Cummings of Redondo Beach, Calif., Dorothy Dickinson and Elizabeth Ryan of New York.

All others had raised the $ [illegible] necessary to finance each member of the team.

The women's track and field team, all the men's field hockey team, both of which faced extreme curtailment of their plans Monday, came through in great shape yesterday. The women raised theirs by collecting $[illegible] from public contributions and private interests and the men got under the wire by signing a note of the father of one team member.

There was great excitement on the waterfront this morning as the Manhattan, steaming from stem to stern with bright bunting and flying the American and Olympic flags, started taking on her precious cargo.

Every berth was taken, either by entrants, officials or newspapermen.

Cincinnati Walker Cupper Still Likes Hickory Shafts

CINCINNATI.—Johnny Fischer, [illegible] Walker cupper from [illegible]

[illegible] iron I used to get the eagle 2 [illegible] the ninth in the 1933 amateur," says Johnny, the former Big Ten conference and 1932 national collegiate champion from Michigan who is studying law at the University of Cincinnati. "That shot changed my whole outlook on the qualifying round and helped me set the record of 141."

He'll carry plenty of the old trusty hickory-shafted sticks when he competes as a member of the Walker cup team again. These include a spade niblick and a mashie niblick that have been in his bag since he undertook competitive campaigning back in 1926. The mashie niblick, with a light, [illegible] offset head, is his favorite. He has it reshafted nearly every year.

There's a bit of sentiment connected with the pitching spade. Johnny used it to hop stymies laid by Lawson Little in the 1932 amateur.

"I'm keeping all three," he says, "mainly to retain the feel, touch and confidence their long use in tournament play have given me."

In Johnny's bag also is an ancient putter he's carried so long he can't remember where it came from. It helped him out of many a tight spot. And there is a nondescript weapon known as his [illegible] iron, used for shots in the wind. Its stamping no longer is [illegible]
